

Science of Nursing and Health Practices

a RRISIQ journal bilingual | open-access

Appel de textes - Science infirmière et pratiques en santé

Call for papers

Science of Nursing and Health Practices \(SNAHP\) is an international, bilingual, open-access journal, free for both readers and authors. Produced by the Quebec Network on Nursing Intervention Research \(RRISIQ\), SNAHP encourages the democratization of the access to research results for increasing the use of research in health practices.

SNAHP invites authors to submit papers in three areas:

- clinical practice
- management and organization of care and services
- training of health professionals.

Manuscripts submitted by April 15, 2020, will be considered for publication in Volume 3, Issue 2, slated for release in December 2020.

Science of Nursing and Health Practices \(SNAHP\) is an open-access scholarly journal: all published articles are made freely available online increasing the visibility of your work.

Other reasons to publish with us?

- Double-blind peer review, a standardized and ethical process
- Free for authors: no Article Processing Charge (APC)
- DOI assigned to articles for easy linking and retrieval
- Strong and constant support by a dedicated editorial team

Warm regards,

José Côté, RN. Ph.D., Editor-in-chief

Authors interested in submitting a manuscript should refer to the Instructions for authors. Prior to submitting, feel free to address any questions or to correspond informally with the editorial team at melina.bernier@umontreal.ca.